Subject : Action plan to take forward customs counter-terrorism initiatives
- Report from the informal working group

Introduction

1. International terrorism is a threat to us all. Since the 11 September 2001 attacks on New York and Washington there have been attacks in Kenya, Bali, Tunisia, Istanbul, Morocco, Saudi Arabia and Madrid. Terrorist cells have been discovered throughout the European Union including cells in Germany, France, The Netherlands, Italy, Spain and the United Kingdom.

The Threat and the Role of Customs

2. The international terrorist threat comes in many different forms but the areas of direct Customs interest are:

- the smuggling across national frontiers of weapons of mass destruction or mass disruption (WMDs) or their components. These can range from a nuclear device, radioactive substances that when combined with conventional explosives could form a so called dirty bomb, to chemical or biological agents such as Anthrax or the poison Ricin;
  - conventional weapons and explosives;
  - other terrorist related equipment, e.g. timing devices;
  - false passports, credit cards, large sums of money, documents detailing movements of money.
3. Customs plays an important role in increasing supply chain security, detecting and deterring the movement of terrorist weapons and related materials, detecting terrorist related funds and providing intelligence and information to the competent national authorities.

The Informal Working Group & its Action Plan

4. In Council document 7218/04 ENFOCUSTOM 16 dated 10 March 2004, the United Kingdom delegation recommends several actions that can be taken by Customs administrations to support the fight against international terrorism. The Customs Cooperation Working Party (CCWP) agreed that a small group of Member States be established to develop those actions and to produce an action plan for consideration.
5. The informal customs counter-terrorism working group first met on 11 May 2004. The group now comprises representatives from France, Germany, Italy, the Netherlands, Poland, Spain, Sweden, the United Kingdom, Europol and the Commission (DGs JAI & TAXUD).
6. The working group had a very useful and constructive meeting talking through the issues outlined in ENFOCUSTOM 16. The discussion identified that the key areas for development are:

- counter-terrorism awareness training;
- the collection and exchange of intelligence;
- threat assessments;
- intelligence-led multi-agency regional operations (mode- and threat-specific); and
- the funding of terrorism.

In addition, the group agreed that the areas for action must include the detection and prevention of the terrorist threat through controls on suspect goods at import and export or on persons who transport them and cross the external and internal frontiers of the EU (land, sea and air). Controls on intra-Community movements will be based on Article 30 of the Treaty establishing the European Community.

The working group stressed the importance of taking note of other developments and activities in the field of counter-terrorism, such as the Proliferation Security Initiative.

7. As the key areas cover First, Second and Third Pillar competencies, it is of the utmost importance to promote a co-ordinated approach. The action plan provides for a separate action to draw up a list of counter-terrorism activities (currently covered by various First and Third Pillar working groups) in order to avoid duplication of work.

Training

8. Is existing training sufficient to meet the new threat? To be able to counter the threat "you need to know your enemy". This begs a number of questions, including:
  - do officers "know their enemy"?
  - do they know the terminology – for example, what is a MANPAD?
  - would they recognise a detonator?

Intelligence

9. The customs role with regards to intelligence is one of assistance and support. A good relationship between Customs and intelligence services is essential for effective counter-terrorism support. Intelligence is the key to success; however, how do you identify the needle in the haystack or indeed the needle in the entire field? The exchange of intelligence between Customs administrations and other relevant agencies is vital.

Threat assessments

10. Some customs-oriented threat assessments to counter international terrorism are available, but not for all modes of transport and not for all Member States. There is a need to identify what threat assessments are available and up-to-date and to commission threat assessments to fill the gap.

Operations

11. The working group proposes that the CCWP, using the threat assessments, should organise multi-agency operations against high-risk targets.

Actions

12. A draft action plan is attached for approval by the CCWP. First and Third Pillar issues are identified on the plan, as a comprehensive, coordinated Customs approach is required. Work will be taken forward while respecting the Pillar competencies. It is recognised that the Customs administrations of some Member States do not have competency in certain actions covered by this plan. They may therefore feel that they are unable to participate in those actions, although participation by other agencies from that Member State would not necessarily be ruled out.

13. At the CCWP meeting of 11 June 2004, it was agreed that work could begin on the plan pending formal approval of this document. The informal working group met on 7 July 2004 and agreed an initial allocation of work, which is reflected in the “Current Position” column of the plan.

14. It is recommended that the current working group continues and reports to the CCWP and to the Customs Union Group.
