Combating Violence Against Women, and the Provision of Support Services for Victims of Domestic Violence

Draft Council Conclusions²

CONSIDERING THAT:

1. Gender-based violence against women is violence that is directed against a woman because she is a woman or affects women disproportionately; it constitutes a breach of the fundamental right to life, liberty, security, dignity, equality between women and men, non-discrimination and physical and mental integrity.
2. Women and girls are the main victims of gender-based violence. Women victims of such violence and children who witness it often require special support and protection because of the high risk of secondary and repeat victimisation, of intimidation and of retaliation connected with such violence.³
3. Violence against women affects society as a whole and it constitutes an obstacle to women's active participation in society.

² Conclusions adopted within the framework of the review of the implementation of the Beijing Platform for Action, with particular reference to critical area of concern "D: Violence Against Women."

4. Violence against women both violates and impairs or nullifies the enjoyment by women of human rights and fundamental freedoms and is a manifestation (or result) of discrimination against women, and means all acts of gender-based violence that result in, or are likely to result in, physical, sexual, psychological or economic harm or suffering to women, including threats of such acts, coercion or arbitrary deprivation of liberty, whether occurring in public or in private life.⁴
5. Violence against women is a manifestation of the historically unequal power relations between men and women and a cause and consequence of gender inequality.
6. Discriminatory social, traditional and cultural norms and gender stereotypes contribute to violence against women and perpetuate an attitude of indifference and complacency towards this serious problem.
7. All forms of violence against women are to be condemned as a violation of women's full enjoyment of human rights, and REAFFIRMING that neither custom, tradition, culture, privacy, religion nor so-called honour can be invoked to justify it or to avoid the obligations of the Member States with respect to its prevention and elimination and the prosecution of perpetrators.
8. Combating and eliminating all forms of violence against women requires coordinated policies at national and at all other relevant levels and a comprehensive approach targeting the key issues of prevention, protection, victim support, and prosecution of perpetrators as well as other interventions aimed at them.

9. It is difficult to acquire information on the magnitude and consequences of violence against women as it often remains hidden. This contributes to the persisting lack of available and comparable data at both Member State and EU level, which limits understanding of the real extent of violence against women and its consequences and impedes further development of policies, strategies and actions. Consequently, it is important to identify, use and further develop relevant sources of information.
10. The provision of the full range of specialised support services for women victims of violence and children who witness it is essential for protecting women from violence, for preventing its recurrence and for enabling the women and children concerned to recover and rebuild their lives.
11. "Dignity, integrity and an end to gender-based violence" is one of the five priority areas identified in the Commission's Strategy for equality between women and men (2010-2015). The Council has endorsed this priority and called for appropriate measures, including in the European Pact for Gender Equality (2011-2020).
12. The Beijing Platform for Action adopted by the Fourth World Conference of Women in 1995 identifies "Violence against women" as one of twelve critical areas of concern, and states, inter alia, that governments should "take measures to ensure the protection of women subjected to violence."⁵ In 2002, under the Danish Presidency, the Council adopted Conclusions reviewing the work in this critical area and establishing a set of seven indicators concerning domestic violence against women.⁶ Building on this work, the Cyprus Presidency has chosen to focus on the issue of support services for victims of domestic violence and to monitor progress by applying the indicators on this issue.

⁶ 1) Profile of female victims of violence, 2) profile of male perpetrators, 3) victim support, 4) measures addressing the male perpetrator to end the circle of violence, 5) training of professionals, 6) state efforts to eliminate violence against women, and 7) evaluation.

13. In their 18-month Trio Presidency programme, Poland, Denmark, and Cyprus undertake to "actively support all initiatives relating to measures to combat violence against women, domestic violence and female genital mutilation, in particular its cross-border aspects, taking into account also developments in other international fora, such as the Council of Europe".⁷
14. In the context of the review of the implementation of the Beijing Platform for Action, the European Institute for Gender Equality (EIGE) has prepared a report on "the Review of the Implementation of the Beijing Platform for Action by the EU Member States: Violence against women: Victim support". The report gives an overview of the current situation as regards domestic violence against women in the EU Member States, and sets out recent legislative and policy measures aimed at tackling the problem and the remaining challenges. The report also includes an in-depth review of the issue of victim support, based on the relevant indicator as established by the Council in 2002.⁸
15. The elimination and prevention of all forms of violence against women and girls will be the priority theme of the 57th Session of the United Nation Commission on the Status of Women in 2013.
16. This set of conclusions builds on the political commitments voiced by the European Parliament, the Council, the European Council, the Commission and other actors in this area, including the documents listed in Annex II.

17. TAKING NOTE OF

The outcome of the European Conference on Combating Violence Against Women in the EU that took place in Nicosia on 8-9 November 2012 and aimed to review progress at EU level and to facilitate the exchange of good practice between the Member States in this field, as well as of the European Police College (CEPOL) Presidency Conference on "Overcoming Attrition in Domestic Violence through Policing" which took place in Limassol on 10-12 July 2012 as part of a broader project initiated by Cyprus Police to develop a European Union Handbook of Best Police Practice in Overcoming Attrition in Domestic Violence Cases, and the results of the Best Practice Conference and the European Crime Prevention Award of the European Crime Prevention Network (EUCPN), whose theme for 2012 is Community Policing as a Tool for Crime Prevention, related to Burglaries, domestic Violence and Juvenile Delinquency.

18. The report on "the Review of the Implementation of the Beijing Platform for Action by the EU Member States: Violence against women: Victim support" that was prepared by EIGE at the request of the Cyprus Presidency.⁹ While progress has been made, the support services provided vary greatly across the EU in terms of capacity, quality and geographical distribution. More needs to be done, in particular, to ensure the effective coordination of the public support system, sustainable funding for specialised support services, targeted prevention programmes and systematic training for professionals dealing with victims or perpetrators of all acts of violence against women, as well as to improve data collection on violence against women at national and EU level.

THE COUNCIL OF THE EUROPEAN UNION

CALLS ON THE MEMBER STATES AND THE EUROPEAN COMMISSION, in accordance with their respective competences, to:

19. Develop and implement, and improve where they already exist, comprehensive, multidisciplinary and multi-agency coordinated action plans, programmes or strategies, as appropriate, to combat all forms of violence against women and girls, involving all relevant stakeholders and combining legislative and non-legislative measures aimed at the prevention and elimination of violence, the provision of protection and support to victims, and the prosecution of perpetrators and other interventions aimed at them; and to ensure appropriate and sustainable funding for the implementation of these policies and the operation of services.
20. Consider developing a European Strategy for preventing and combating all forms of violence against women in accordance with the Council Conclusions on the Eradication of Violence Against Women in the European Union adopted in 2010.
21. Improve the collection and dissemination at both national and EU level of comparable, reliable, regularly updated administrative and statistical data on victims and perpetrators of all forms of violence against women, disaggregated by sex, age and victim-perpetrator relationship, working in cooperation with national and European statistical offices and making full use of the work of the EIGE where appropriate, and to support research and the exchange of good practice in this field.
22. Improve the registration and handling of complaints received at the Member States level by police, judicial, health, social and other relevant authorities, agencies, institutions and NGOs, that work in the field of violence against women, as well as the identification of cases related to all forms of violence against women for example by using the European Union Handbook of Best Police Practices in Overcoming Attrition in Domestic Violence Cases.

23. To provide or strengthen appropriate training for the relevant professionals dealing with victims and perpetrators of all acts of violence against women, and where relevant, and in accordance with national law and practices, reinforce special units and/or police units, and task forces that deal with women victims of all acts of such violence.
24. Ensure that support services for victims of violence are in adequate supply and apply a gender equality perspective in particular with a view to protecting and empowering women and children, and that such services are tailored to their specific immediate and longer-term needs and safety.
25. Seek to ensure that support programmes aimed at perpetrators of violence against women with a view to preventing further violence are made available and that perpetrators are encouraged to take part in them.
26. Strengthen national health and social infrastructure to promote equal access for women victims of violence to public health care and address the health consequences of all forms of violence against women and girls.
27. Strengthen and support multi-agency and multidisciplinary co-operation involving all relevant stakeholders including women's organisations and NGOs, which play an important role in combating violence against women and providing services to victims of such violence and their children.
28. Consider establishing a European helpline (within the 116 numbering system) to assist victims of violence against women, by identifying and eliminating remaining obstacles at national level.

29. Monitor the situation with respect to violence against women, including support services for victims of domestic violence, on a regular basis, using the indicators established in 2002 as set out in Annex I and in line with the precedent established for Beijing Platform for Action follow-up, and promote further research on other forms of violence against women, including with a view to further developing and improving these indicators so as to allow for efficient monitoring and comparability, making use of the work of the EIGE.

CALLS ON THE EUROPEAN PARLIAMENT, THE EUROPEAN COMMISSION AND THE MEMBER STATES, in accordance with their respective competences, to:

30. Consider signing, ratifying and implementing the Council of Europe Convention on preventing and combating violence against women and domestic violence, without prejudice to the possible future negotiations on possible EU accession.
31. Carry out and support long-term awareness-raising activities including through education and training programmes to combat discriminatory traditional, cultural and social norms, and tackle prevalent sexist stereotypes and social stigmatisation which legitimise and perpetuate violence against women. Such initiatives should involve all relevant authorities and NGOs and be effectively monitored and evaluated as to their impact on the various target groups concerned.
32. Pay attention to primary prevention of violence against women, inter alia by recognising the role of the educational system as one of the primary sources of socialisation and as a key transmitter of traditional and cultural and social norms which can also include negative elements such as gender stereotyping and rigid gender roles that are conducive to violence against women.

33. Emphasize the critical role and responsibility of men and boys in the process of eradicating violence against women, including by encouraging men to speak out against violence, and ensure that the role of men and boys is taken into account in all strategies, action plans and other measures aimed at reducing and eradicating violence against women.
34. Enhance the protection of victims of violence against women when exercising their right to free movement in the European Union, including by ensuring the timely and effective implementation of Directive 2011/99/EU on the European protection order (in criminal matters), or similar civil measures, taking account of the different justice systems across the EU.
35. Ensure the timely and effective implementation of Directive 2012/29/EU establishing minimum standards on the rights, support and protection of victims of crime, which will strengthen EU minimum standards, in particular by improving access for victims of violence against women and their family members to general victim support and specialised support, in accordance with their needs.
36. Pay special attention to the interests and difficulties of all women and girls in vulnerable situations and facing multiple discrimination so as to ensure that protection against violence and support for its victims reaches all parts of society, including marginalised groups.
37. Ensure appropriate and sustainable funding, at EU and national level for advancing equality between women and men and for combating violence against women, without prejudice to the ongoing negotiations on the Multi-Annual Financial Framework (2014-2020).
38. Consider designating 2015 the European Year on Zero Tolerance for Violence against Women so as to raise awareness and draw attention to the widespread phenomenon of violence against women and its impact on society.

39. CALLS ON THE MEMBER STATES, THE EEAS AND THE EUROPEAN COMMISSION, in accordance with their respective competences, to strengthen their support to partner countries in combating violence against women and all forms of discrimination against women and girls, including through support to non-state actors, in accordance with the EU Guidelines on Violence Against Women and the EU 2010-2015 Plan of Action for Gender Equality and Women's Empowerment.
